

Scott B. Sperling

Education

- 2004-2008 Bucknell University
B.S. in Biology, minor in philosophy, summa cum laude
- 2008-2012 University of Maryland School of Medicine
M.D.

Postgraduate Training

- 2012-2015 Rhode Island and The Miriam Hospitals/Brown University
Resident Physician
- 2015-present Tufts Medical Center
Endocrinology Fellow

Research Activities

- Summer 2006; Undergraduate research student
- 2007-2008 Mentor: Dr. Matthew Heintzelman, Ph.D, Department of Biology,
Bucknell University
Investigated the unique gliding motility of the protozoan Gregarina polymorpha
- Summer 2009 Summer Research Training Program for Medical Students
Mentor: Dr. John McLenithan Ph.D., Division of Endocrinology, Diabetes, and Nutrition; Department of Medicine, University of Maryland
School of Medicine
Investigated the adipokine omentin as a possible link between obesity and type 2 diabetes

Poster Presentations

- 2013 Sperling S, Shah M, McKnight E, Obrien J. Blinded...by Science: A Case of Topiramate Induced Glaucoma. Clinical Vignette Poster Presentation at the 2013 ACP Rhode Island Chapter Annual Scientific Meeting
- 2014 Sperling S, Bhatt H. Prolactinoma: A Massive Effect on Bone Mineral Density in a Young Patient. Clinical Vignette Poster Presentation at the 2014 ACP Rhode Island Chapter Annual Scientific Meeting

Volunteer Experience

- 2010-2012 Member, University of Maryland School of Medicine Judicial Board

College and Medical School Awards

- 2008 The William P. Boger Jr., M.D. Award; awarded to an outstanding senior, who has indicated a desire to spend his or her career in medicine or the biological sciences
- 2008 The Samuel Lewis Ziegler Prize; for the senior who best exemplifies the goals of a premedical education
- 2008 The President's Award for Distinguished Academic Achievement; to recognize annually all students who have demonstrated, according to established criteria, a high level of academic excellence
- 2012 The Dr. I. Earl Pass Memorial Award for Exceptional Proficiency in Internal Medicine; recognizes a member of the graduating class with an outstanding performance in medicine

Membership in Honorary/Professional Societies

- 2008 Phi Beta Kappa National Honor Society, Bucknell University– for excellence in the liberal arts and sciences
- 2011 Alpha Omega Alpha National Medical Honor Society, University of Maryland School of Medicine