Research Interests and Experience:

Research interests include examining malnutrition in all its forms, formulating and implementing evidence based interventions targeting nutritionally disadvantaged populations and translation of innovative basic and clinical sciences research into applied community based research. Studying the effectiveness of programmatic interventions targeting maternal and child nutrition through integrated programming (agriculture, nutrition and health). Developing and implementing community randomized clinical trials to test the efficacy of specific foods/nutrients in the prevention of stunting. Developing and implementing observational birth cohort studies in Ethiopia, Uganda and Nepal to determine areas for intervention within the maternal- infant life cycle for policy recommendation. Enumerating the prevalence non-nutrition risk factors in vulnerable populations and their potential to impair growth (e.g. mycotoxins).
